Creekwatcher Currents 2012: April Fools' Edition!

Volume V, Issue 2

April 1, 2012

Creekwatching Season Begins Today!

Creekwatching begins today-- this afternoon or evening and extends until tomorrow morning at noon. (This is no April Fools', as I hope you realize. By now, you're probably tired of having your gullibility levels tested. No worries. I won't be doing that today.) Please drop off your samples and data sheets no later than 12:00 PM on Monday, April 2. I will be available today and tomorrow should you have any problems or questions, and Lisa will be picking up samples (and data sheets) tomorrow and transporting water samples to Envirocorp.

Ice will be in coolers by 7:30 AM at Glenn Sizemore's in Seaford, LeCompte Memorial in Laurel, Delmarva Power in Salisbury, and the NWA Office in Vienna.

Please take photographs of your site and each other (if you have partners). You can share your photos through our Facebook page or send them directly to us via email.

Also, I will be contacting new Creekwatchers and vets who were not spotlighted in last year's "Meet the Monitor" segments throughout the year.

Lastly, following Monday's Creekwatching, I will be out of the office until Thursday, April 12. Should you have any problems during that time, please contact Lisa at lisabaird@nanticokeriver.org or at 410.443.8878.

Thanks, and happy Creekwatching!

Best,

Beth Wasden

Upcoming Events:

- *Sampling Period 1: April 1 & 2
- *Sampling Period 2: April 14-15
- *Salisbury Zoo Earth Day: April 21
- *Shad Fest: April 28

Free Kayak Rentals at ACE

New program participant, Rommel's ACE Hardware in Seaford, has generously offered to rent kayaks to Creekwatchers for FREE. You will need to put down a normal deposit, which will be returned (providing you return the kayak). Also, please keep in mind that kayak rentals will be limited to less busy days at the ACE, so you'll hard pressed to get a free rental on a weekend in the middle of the summer.

Ask for Bryan to take advantage of this offer!
